Software Test Engineer

Alere Informatics is the industry leader for point of care data management, providing innovative web solutions for over half of all hospitals in the United States. Its parent company, Alere delivers immediate and actionable information through rapid diagnostic tests and data management systems.

Software Test Engineer 1

Alere Informatics is growing and looking for a software test engineer to join our development team. Alere Informatics produces data management software which is a benchmark for others within the healthcare industry. The ideal candidate has strong technical ability, good communication skills, an inquisitive nature, and aptitude for critical thinking. As a software test engineer this individual will contribute to feature definition, requirement verification, and test automation development. This individual will serve as part of a dynamic Agile team.

Primary Responsibilities

- Implement automated testware as part of new software development
- Assess preliminary specifications to evaluate product risk
- Collaborate in refinement of formal definitions
- Interact with medical devices in the execution of manual tests
- Translate feature requirements into testable user stories
- Document testing in accordance with quality standards
- Refactor existing testware to follow coding best practices, enhance maintainability, and improve execution efficiency
- Support investigation of field issues

Necessary Skills and Experience

- Proficiency with JavaScript, C#, or other object-oriented language
- BS degree in technology field or relevant work experience

Desirable Skills and Experience

- SQL or other database experience
- Familiarity with Selenium or equivalent web driver test framework
- Angular
- 2+ years technical experience
- prior testing experience
- Familiarity with TFS, Jira, Rally, or similar Agile development software

Benefits

- Competitive salary based on experience
- Comprehensive benefits including medical, dental, 401K match, PTO, Employer paid life insurance
- Continuing education opportunities with tuition reimbursement
- Fun work environment with regular employee-centered events
To apply, contact:

Michael Owed
Software Test Manager
Michael.Owed@alere.com
434.923-6149